The controller for newGame is the Game object. It is a system-wide object that handles the general flow of the game.

The UID parameters represent the unique ID of players which links the in-game player to their stats.